streedhay

The mount of legal business now in Calgary and surrounding country, radiestit imperatively necessary that some editional means of admit stering justice be given the people. The past few words, Capt. Mellror and Major Dowling have had more than they could do to attend the justice courts, and look after their ordinary police duty, and either the courts and look after their ordinary police duty, and either the police of the court of the proper piece for a stipendiary, who would then reside between Edimonton and Malcol, instead of a present on and Melcol, instead of a present occupying days travelling all the way from. Ackeed to Edimonton. Surely the Stipendary coglit to reside in the business centre, and beyond all doubt the volume of business, both legal and otherwise, in Calgary is double that of Melcoal and Edimonton combinad.
